Territorials' Fine Charge.

"I have come to the conclusion that I am bullet proof, shell-proof dust proof, noise-proof, and hunger-proof; and above all, we're not downbearted yer.

This is part of a leader received by a prohis son, who is a lance-corporal in the London Rifle Brigado. The writer gives a thrilling story of the terrible experiences he has undergone in the trenches

Of course, you have heard the writes of the big struggle through which my brigade has gone. It has been a terrible ordeal, but God has guided me through, and I have not so much as a serneth. It is impossible for me describe in any way the events of the past days since the afternoon of the 23cd. They seem like some terrible nightmare to me, and seem to cover a period of years rather than days.

Providence was by my side right through, and although I was in two charges-one with the 16th Highlanders and one with the 10th Battalion-I missed every bullet. But, like the rest of the men remaining. my nerves are suffering couniderably—the reaction is almost as bad as the action. You have no idea how we felt when we saw our reflet coming up the field and it did our hearts good to hear their opinion of us.
The brigade without a doubt distinguished itself-but at what cost !

You already know that the enemy delivered a sudden attack at 4.15 p.m. on Thursday, the 28rd, and owing to the use of those destardly gas bombe were successful in breaking through the French line. They made a clean break away, and they came in mass formation straight for brigade headquarters, where I was peacefully unjoying ten. Orders flow round like flashes of lightning. We took up a position directly outside headquarters, and made a stand. My word, how the boys fought It was a gigantic task, but we held the line against all the odds. We dug ourselves in, and hald on for dear life, until the remainder of the brigade came up. And they were not long in coming, although it seemed like years - when they arrived the light commenced. The enemy by this time had entrouched themselves, captured some of our guns, and were reaping us down with machine guns and shrapnel. I do not remember much, for and was firing one second, helping and bandaging a wounded comrade the next; but the order came down, "Prepare to charge!" The charge was given, and I guarantee the whole brigade left those tranches like one man. I could not if I would, nor would I if I could, describe that charge. The enemy's fire was absolutely withering, and line after line of our brave men went down. One was certain that nothing could live under such a fire, but our men got there, and the German cowards turned and ran when our bayonsts were ten yards away from them.

WONDERFUL ZIFFRIESCH.

- terrible. I want to tell you that among so many brave men it would have been an | representing Bank Notes. honour to die. .. I siso want to tell you that during that charge my thoughts were with home and mother ; I thought of all of you. We went on, and got them well back to the woods, where we had to dig ourselves in.

The brigade came out of the trenches at 6.30 s.m. on Saturday, and marched to a field some distance away from the fighting line to have a muster rollcall. There are some things one never forgets, and that is one of them for me. I can imagine no aight more pathetic than that parade of the brigade. Brothers were looking for one another, friends were seeking friends. We were all fired and hungry but elated with victory. Our brigadier expressed his pride and gratitude, and he segretted that it was necessary for us to return immediately to the trenches and fight until such time as relief could be brought up, and in we went; tired as we ware, and continued the good

FACTS ABOUT THE WAR.

A BULLETIN OF INFORMATION,

Published by the Paris Chamber of Commerce.

ANOTHER FOUL GERMAN CRIME; THE SINKING OF THE LUSITANIA. On May 7th, off the south coast of freland a .German submarine torpedoed the Lusitania without giving any previous warning. The vessel sank in a few minutes. There were many Americans on board, and 1450 souls went down with the giant steamship. This evince committed in cold-blooded premeditation puts Germany, once and for ever, under the ban of givilized nations. The whole world united in denouncing this appalling crime, which has filled it with horror and "indignation. The American Press demands the enforcement of prompt and stripgent measures as penalty for such a crime; it recalls the solemn declaration made by the American government on February 11th last, concerning the respect due to the lives and property of American citizens. The Neutral Nations of Europe all units in denouncing this latest and greatest of the German pirates' crimes. The Norwegian paper," Morgenbladet " (May 8th) call this fresh outrage " the summaint of German plundering." The " Telegrant " of Amsterdam writed ;-- The Neutral countries remained silent while the Germans violated the neutrality of Belgium, and trumpled under foot all International Law, by invading France; will they still remain passive to-day? Is it a matter of indifference to them, that a nation, having lost all feelings of humanity, should overthrow the whole of European civilization?" The nurder of the 1450 passengers of the Lusitania is said to have enject a great burst of enthusiasm at Berlin; it is also reported that the Kuiser had promised a large reward to the submarine accomplishing this fint.

FAILURE OF GRRMANT'S PLAN IN THE EAST.

By bringing about the present war, Germany wished to settle the Eastern question to her own advantage. With Serbian independence wined out, the road from Berlin toe-Constantinople and Sc onica would be free. The Turkish Elmpire becoming Germany's vassal, th Kniser would stretch out his "mailed fist " over Anatolia and Mesopotamia, to the Persian Gulf, and so threaten th English on their road to India.

But this beautiful oriental dream of Pangermanian has vanished. It was Serbin who defeated the Austro-Hungarian armies wit is the English who now supported and it is the Allies who are advancing in the Dardanelles. To Ger many nothing is left but the discredit of employing ways and means nothing One Silk Tapestry-covered Drawing short of treachery with regard to civilized nations, in order to carry out her plans for dominating the world. She has endeayoured to stir up native populations against Europeans, not only in Egypt Morocco and India, but even in neutra countries, and amongst those who were her allies but a short time ago, even i Italian-Tripoli. Fire-arms sent by Germany to her agents, and hired disturbers One Old Blackwood Wardrobe, One of the pence at Tripoli, have been seized Blackwood Screen (Porcelain at Venice. In a recent affair German and Turkish officers were made prisoner in revolt to massacre the Italians i Tripoli. In a threatening article in the Deutsche Tageszeitung, Count Reventlow. a deputy in the Reichstag, confirms the fact that Turco-German intrigues against Italian Rule in the state of Tripoli, do

"In my book, Deutschland und der methate Krieg, says Bernhardi, I showed that the conquest of world-wide power a a 'vital question for Germany, but lid not speak of world-wide mustery, which is quite a different thing. We do not menace the liberty of any race what ever; we only want to develop our-own interests without being prevented from so doing by, other Powers." These are apparently very innecent intentions. Unfortunately Bernhardi overlooks many passages, in his works, by which, in very explicit terms, he claimed that Germany should become the preponderating Power in the world . For instarrage after haging pretended to show the superiority of German Culture over all other civilizations. ne added, "The political situations of Germany is not on a par with the preominence of Teutonic civilization." (Der nachste Krieg). The conclusion we must draw is: That Germany should also enjoy political pre-eminence. But as to the distinction that Bernhardi endeavours to make between world-wide power, and Corporal Prentice was singled out for mention, and he has received promotion on its account. " He was stationed at a p int of observation, and as his position seemed by his sergeant. He refused to move, and although the back portion of the cover was carried away by a shell, he calmly established himself in the remaining portion and did some excallent work during the rest of the day. In the evening he was wounded Mr Harold D. Gillies, who has taken such a prominent place in first-class eventin recent seasons, has gone to join the staff of the Allied Hospital south of Boulogue, after having spent about a month helping the Belgian Red Cross Society at their field hospital near Furnes. Though Mr Gillies has figured in the Amateur Champiouship several times, and in the past two. seasons has been the leading amateur in the French Open Championship, the atoty of his appearance for Cambridge, is less known. At the time he was given his rowing blue he had never played golf at the University, and he was not thought. of as a candidate for the team. But he happened to take a holiday where the Cambridge golfers were practising, and, after he had beaten two of them, his feats were reported to the captain and he was given a place in the side. His more recent advance in the game was due to his becoming an exceedingly long driver. a The news that Tom Fernie, the Turn-

THE FRENCH 75'S IN ACTION.

LONDON, July 18.

Convert him I am blue the terms to the top other a specient many born be edich ment the attacks referred to in his despatch were very successful, the first lines of the enemy being easily carried. He adds that when a Brigade Globe, writes :of a Naval Division retook the lost section they were supported by the French 75's. Their success was important, as the position was vital to the safety of the line.

THE EASTERN FRONT

AUSTRIANS CROSS THE DNIESTER

London, July 16. A Petrograd communique says: -The enemy, strongly reinforced, took the offensive on the 14th inst. in the region of Riga and Shavli. Our cavalry and advance guards detain the enemy at the crossings of the River Windaua and Venta and other favourable positions. " Our troops between the Rivers Orjetz and Vkra occupy a front south of Prasnysz, where they repulsed several attacks on the 14th inst. Austrian troops resumed the offensive on the 13th inst., and crosse the Duiester at several points.

GERMAN ATTACKS IN ARGONNE REPULSED.

LONDON, July 16, 3.15 d.m. The Paris evening communique says ;---

The day has been relatively quiet. Two German attacks in Argonne were repulsed. Elsewhere there were artillery actions.

HOW FALZAREGO SUMMIT WAS CAPTURED.

LONDON, July 16, There has been a renewal of activity on the Italian front after some British Government, who can only say days' luli. A communique records a feat of the infantry, who scaled the that trade with the enemy "is sides of a ravino reputed to be inaccessible and surprised and captured desirable. Falzarego summit. The Austrians desperately counter-attacked in the night, but were repulsed with great loss.

The Italian heavy batteries continue effectively to work, demolishing the forts of Platzwiese and Landro, in Upper Cadore.

BRITISH USE OF GAS.

Lozbon, July 16. Mr. Tennant, in the House of Commons, informed Sir J. H. Delzie that the recent denial of the use of gas referred to Gallipoli. There was to change in our gas policy in Frence as announced by Lord Kitchener,

A GERMAN SPY EXECUTED.

COTTON AS CONTRABAND.

A Difficult Problem.

LONDON, July 16. In the House of Lords, Lord Crewe, replying to a series of questions on cotton as contraband, reiterated that the Government boped by continual friendly negotiations with neutral countries gradually to limit the exports of cotton to their own actual needs, based upon the average of imports in recent years. It was impossible to institute a regular blockade of the neutral ports in the United States, especially the cotton States. A decigration that cotton was contraband would cause much alarm and disturbance. We stood better in the opinion of the United States because Americans differentiated between our methods of warfare and those of the enemy. The Government were averse to any step that might be regarded by the southern States as especially | tendered, but the business went to a It struck the Golieth woder the bridge. Every article must be judged on its merit, and the German firm, Arnhold, Karberg and Co., Another torpedo hit her between the reasons for his request; the places to which advantage and disadventage weighed. If in regard to cotton military coneiderations were found to be paramount they might have to face the disadvantages. It would be unwise for the Government to hind themselves in either direction, and they must leave the door open for a declaration of contraband, always bearing in mind the fair claims of neutrals.

In common with other British tirms I have suifered greatly from the German invasion of that country for trade. As your article truly mays, the attitude taken up by our Government in connection with trading with the enemy in China is absurd. Most of the German houses in that land are backed, actively, by their Government. and it is only necessary for a firm to com-plain to the Consulate if the bank refuse to give them facilities for the Consul to instruct the bank to give the needed assistance to enable the firm to carry out any

The community has also taken the bit between its teeth and broken away from the old Chamber of Commerce, and headed by the Hongkorg Bank, Butterfield and Swire, Jardine, Matheson, and Co., L.d., Ac., has formed a new Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of keeping its hands clean from the state that will for ever cling to the German nation. My roply to Sir John Jordan was that until the Consular Body gave us that support which is given by every other country save our own to its traders. we should be unable to secure our proper share in the immense business of China. backed up my statement by incidents out of my own experience where I had lost large and important business through the refusal of our own consular body to give that backing which we, sas traders, consider is our right in such lands. I told him of one instance where a business proposal, and was mot with the reply that it was none of his business. Strange to say, within three weeks that same Consular officer wrote to me seriously taking me to task for allowing my German competitors to secure business that I was supposedly seeking. Needless to say, I at once called upon that Consul and asked for explanations, which were lame and inconclusive. This is only one incident, that could be multiplied by every merchant in China, that one of the greatest drawbacks ! to our securing business in China is the almost total lack of active sympathy from of the sinking of the British battleship
